

Outline

I. Introduction

A. Attention Grabber

B. Thesis Statement: American women have evolved significantly in their rights for being able to compete in track and field in the Olympics, starting with their struggles as early as ancient Greece. Once they have gained their right to compete in 1928, the years leading to today have shown an increase in women's rights and they have been able to reshape the image of track and field.

II. Origins

A. Attitudes Towards Women

B. Ancient Greece

C. Meets Before 1928 Olympics

D. Breakthrough

Notice that the first Roman numeral is the introduction, with A for attention grabber and B for the thesis.

III. 1928-1950

A. First Women's Olympic Track Meet

B. Influential Women

C. Evolution of Amount of Events

Remember that the outline will be graded in Noodle Tools. All notecards should be dragged from the tabletop to the appropriate section of the outline (not seen here).

IV. 1951-1990

A. Evolution of Amount of Events

B. Increase in Rights

C. Influential Women

D. More Difficulties

Notice that every Roman numeral has at least two sub-points – if there is an A, there must be a B. If there is a 1 there must be a 2.

V. 1991-Today

A. Evolution of Amount of Events

B. Evolution Significance

C. More Difficulties

VI. Conclusion
